

Kansas
Professional Communicators

Who are we?

We are a diverse organization of Kansas professionals across the spectrum of the communications field. We connect communicators and develop skills. While we started our connections in 1941 for women journalists, today we are women and men who work as writers, editors, photographers, contract communicators, advertising and marketing professionals and so much more.

What do we offer?

- Professional skills development
- Awards and recognition
- Career connections
- National affiliation

Why is KPC for me?

Maybe you're a new communications graduate just starting out in the workplace and looking to make connections with other professionals. Or, perhaps you're a mid- to late-career professional seeking new skills and new opportunities. KPC is an inclusive group of forward-thinking and diverse communications professionals seeking affordable career improvement.

To learn more:

Website: www.kansasprofessionalcommunicators.org

Facebook Group: Kansas Professional Communicators

Email: kansasprocom@gmail.com